MGTC Adult Education Success Story

My name is Shabrea Davis and I am a GED graduate. I made the decision to leave high school after numerous family issues forced this decision upon me. I always thought this decision would haunt me until I met a representative from Middle Georgia Technical College's Adult Education program and enrolled in GED classes. In seven years, I've accomplished more than many of my high school classmates. I've earned my GED, Associate's, Bachelor's, and Master's Degrees as well as obtained a position as an Adjunct Instructor for Middle Georgia Technical College's Adult Education Department.

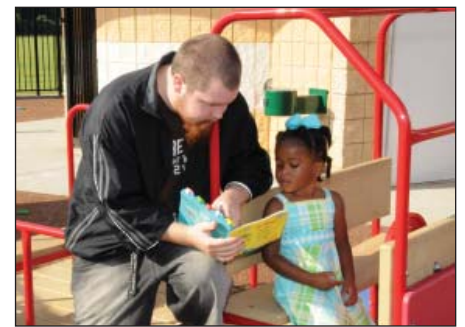

I often thought about the struggles that my parents encountered over the years without having the proper education to succeed and grow. The thought of going through life and accepting "good enough" was not an option for me. I am the first person in my immediate family to obtain a GED or high school diploma, let alone a Masters degree. I was determined to break the cycle.

The Adult Education program opens many doors for students who are both young and old. It provided me with the same opportunities as a high school graduate. Making the decision to go back to school was not an easy process, but I knew it was a decision I had to make for myself and my family. With determination and a strong will to succeed, I have proven that all things are possible.

The Adult Education program is filled with instructors and staff that put everything they have into making sure the students they serve reach their short and long-term goals. The Adult Education program provided me not only with the ability to obtain my GED, but a chance to experience life after a GED. Because of Middle Georgia Technical College's Adult Education Department, I was given opportunities that would not have been possible without a GED. I continue to share my story with the students that we serve so they can understand there is hope for a better future and the first step is through the genuine concern and compassion of the Adult Education program at MGTC.

MGTC Adult Education Program Students Read to Child Development Center Students

Students in the Adult Education program at Middle Georgia Technical College share the skills they have learned with those who are just beginning their educational journey. Children, ages 3 and 4 years old, had the opportunity to listen to students from the 'big school' read to them. Through this collaborative effort, the younger students get to listen and learn and the adult students are able to share and showcase skills they have learned. This exercise conveys that education is a life-long process and the learning never stops!
